6 So far back as the 11th March 1908 the Nagpore City Municipal Council resolved to impose a general water rate in the City in accordance with the recommendations of the Sub Committee and a formal notice of their intention was published in the Nagpore Gazette that notice seems to embody all requirements. Besides the Municipal Committee's present proposal is the outcome of the initiative taken by the Govt. In such circumstances, may the proposal be sanctioned with effect from the 1st January 1910? The levy of water rate is a Council matter.

The Mysore City Municipal Council's proposal is to enforce a general water tax "as in force in the Bangalore City," i.e. at 3 per cent of the rental value of all buildings and premises in the City. The Municipal Council's notice referred to in para 6 enforces a more specific on the subject than their Resolutions.

This order of Govt (L.F 103-92 d 12-2-1900) Para 2, shows that (except by intention of Govt) water rate should not if possible be imposed in Mysore city. If all attempts have been made to find the money required for maintenance of the works in other ways and failed, I see no objection to its imposition at the same rate as in Mysore Bangalore, (3 Rs)

I wish that the system of meters and charge for surplus water should not be introduced I should also like to know what revenue is being derived from private taps in Mysore which presumably will have to be given up on the imposition of fixed water tax

Submitted to His Highness

These papers relate to the question of levying a general water tax in the Mysore City Municipality.

2. When the Vani Vilas Water Works were given to the Municipal Council as a free gift by the Government in February 1900, the Government expressed the hope that, as the Municipal Council had paid nothing towards the construction of the works and the maintenance charges (estimated at Rs.9,072) were comparatively small, the Council would find it possible to maintain the works from its ordinary income without having to impose a special water rate for the purpose The Government added that if the Council was really unable to provide the necessary funds as above, they would then be prepared to consider the desirability of imposing a water rate.

3. In Proceedings No.1256-63/A 40-8 dated 17th December 1906, Government deemed it desirable that in order to prevent waste of water a fixed maximum free allowance should be laid down for private house connections in Mysore as in Bangalore, and that consumption of water in excess of such free allowance should be charged for; and accordingly directed the introduction into the Mysore City of the rules in force in Bangalore in respect of house connections supplied from the Chamarajendra Water Works.

4. With reference to this, in May 1907 the President of the Mysore City Municipal Council submitted for the favourable consideration and orders of Government, a resolution of the Board proposing certain modifications of the rules. It was urged among other matters that the annual rental value of houses to which house-connections would be given should be reduced to Rs 100 (it is Rs 120 in Bangalore), that meters should be placed only in public institutions and other places where the Council may be of opinion that a large quantity of water is being drawn, and that the levy of a general water tax, which the introduction of the rules may render necessary, "would be inconsistent with and opposed to the charitable intentions of the Royal donor" of the water works to the Municipal Council. It was further urged that such a tax would press heavily upon a very large majority of house holders who were poor and unable to bear the burden, and should not if possible be introduced.

5. In their Proceedings No.6110-1/M1.340-06 dated 24th December 1907, the Government agreed to the reduction in the limit of annual rental value for house connections, recommended by the Council, but pointed out that it was not possible to give the Mysore City an unlimited supply of water; that in order to prevent waste, the adoption of the rules, including that relating to the fixing of meters for house connections and charging for excess consumption, was necessary, and that as this would involve the abolition of the existing tax on house connections at Rs.25 per annum for 1" pipes and Rs.15 for ¾" pipes and consequent loss of revenue there was no help for it but to levy a general water-tax. It was also pointed out that there was no understanding at the time the water works were handed over to the Municipal Council that a general water-tax was never to be imposed. At that time the Council were in favour of such a tax but as mentioned in para 2 above the Government desired to avoid the imposition of a general tax if it was possible to do so, but were willing to consider the question if it should be found necessary later on. Now that necessity had arisen the Municipal Council were asked to take the needful steps for its levy.

6. Thereupon, the President forwarded to Government a copy of a resolution of the Board agreeing to the levy of a general water tax as in force in the Bangalore City, after arrangements were made for a continuous supply of pipe water.

7. The President was asked to complete without delay the formalities required by sections 59 to 62 of the Municipal Regulations before the tax could be imposed (vide pages 2 to 6 of office notes in Municipal file No.530 of 07).

8. The subject having again come before Government in connection with the budget for the current year and no report of the action taken having been received from the President, he was again reminded about the matter in July last, and he has now reported that the formalities required by law have been completed, that the matter could not be disposed of earlier as the Chief Engineer had only recently consented to the two essential conditions precedent to the introduction of a general water tax, viz. (1) the giving of a continuous supply of water, and (2) increasing the number of public fountains wherever order of 24th December 1907 referred to in para 5, the Government no doubt entertained the hope that the Municipal Council would find it possible to maintain the works and keep up a proper distribution from its ordinary income, without imposing a special water rate, but they at the same time added that if the Council was really unable to do so, Government would then be prepared to consider the desirability of sanctioning the imposition of a water rate, and there is thus no understanding that a general water rate was never to be imposed. As regards the ability of the Municipal Council to meet the cost of water supply without the imposition of such a tax, it may be noted that the liabilities of the Council in this respect have, as will be seen from the figures noted in the margin, been increasing year by year; and the municipal balances have steadily been diminishing. The Council has also to bear the outlay outlay of Rs.50,000 on account of the electrification of the Belagola Pumping plant for which a loan has had to be given by Government. In these circumstances, I am of opinion that the levy of a general water rate is unavoidable and may, as agreed to by the Municipal Council and the First Councillor, be sanctioned with effect from the 1st January 1910.

12. That there is at present in the Mysore City much waste of water and use of pipe water for other than domestic purposes will be seen from the accompanying statement received from the Executive Engineer, Water Supply Division; the consumption in some private houses being over 30,000 gallons a m o n t h, which is very much in excess of the free allowance they would be entitled to at 160 gallons for every rupee of the rental value of the house. (The statement indeed is defective in that it does not show the rental value of each house and the free allowance to which it is in consequence entitled. But the houses are well known and the free allowance is 160 gallons per Rupee.) At present the Municipal Council levies a fee of Rs.15 for half inch pipes and Rs.25 for one inch pipes upon such of the houses as have been given house connections, and the revenue from this source is estimated at Rs.8,072 per annum. The levy of a general water rate and of charges for consumption in excess of a free allowance renders the abolition of this fee necessary. We shall then have the general water tax, which is expected to bring in an income of Rs.18,000 per annum, as also the payments for excess consumption, which at the present rate of consumption will be considerable. If on the other hand this has the effect of reducing consumption, that would be a great point, and also reduce the maintenance and distribution charges to some extent.

With reference to your letter No 969/Ml.176-69- dated 26th July 1909 regarding the imposition of a general water rate in the Mysore City, I have the honour to state th as the Chief Engineer has only very recently consented to the two essential conditions Viz. (1) giving the City a continuous supply of water and (2) increasing the number of public fountains wherever absolutely necessary, the Council have resolved to introduce the general water tax in the City as soon as Government sanction thereto is received

I request therefore that you will be so good as to move the Government to accord their sanction to the introduction of the general water tax in the City from the 1st of January 1910, inasmuch as the formalities required by sections 59 and 60 were observed over a year ago (Vide page No.988 Part II of the Mysore Gazette No.30 dated 23rd July 1908).

Copy of letter No 5215 dated 5th July 1909 from the Chief Engineer of Mysore, Bangalore. to the President, City Municipal Council, Mysore. 5

With reference to your letter No 704 of the 18th ultimo asking for certain particulars in connection with the question of levying a general water tax in the City &c , I have the honour to inform you that I can, with the new pumping plant, arrange for continuous water supply at all times of the year as soon as the houses in the City are metered, but the last season's experience has proved beyond a shadow of doubt that 24 hours supply without meters simply leads to enormous waste There are reasons to suppose that this waste is due to the fact that certain house --- owners and others with large gardens, use the filtered supply for garden watering This waste can only react by increasing the cost of running the plant to a high figure 1 2

2 With regard to the 2nd point referred to in the letter, the increase to public fountains, if kept within reasonable ---- bounds will not prove to be such a serious item as to make the general supply a matter of difficulty On the other hand unlike the practice in Bangalore it has become, at certain times, the -- custom in Mysore to supply public fountains in a rather indiscriminate manner To guard against a repetition of such a practice which might easily become a serious nuisance from the point of view of the supplier I would suggest that before a new fountain is erected, the President of the Municipality representing the consumers and the local sanitary authorities- and the Chief ---- Engineer representing the supplier should be agreed as to the advisability of the work This will place the decision arrived at, outside the bounds of acrimonious discussion and the proced entailed will be very simple If the above point are agre

to, there will be no difficulty with regard to continuous supply
